IRENE SCHROEDER TRIAL OPENS

NAVAL PARLEY FATE MAY BE DETERMINED DURING THIS WEEK

Delegates Attempt To Settle Dispute With French

LONDON, March 10. — A fateful week for the London
naval conference, which will determine once and for all whether a five-power agreement
is possible, opened here
today with continuation of the negotiations which proceeded at a feverish pace over the week-end.

The eighth week of the conference found the British and French attempting to get down to bed-rock consideration of the French tonnage figures, now standing at 725-000 tons. At the same time, the delegates were discussing the political pact which France demands. It was admitted frankly that little progress was made in this matter over the week-end.

After seven weeks of negotiations, sometimes hectic, sometimes dull to the point of boredom,
the conference has finally reached the crux of the situation, namely the French demands.

Secretary of State Henry L.
Stimson, Ambassador Dwight Morrow and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, representing the United States
met the French and British delegates at St. James' Palace at 10 o'clock this morning. Their attempts to get down to a detailed discussion of the French tonnage figures temporarily fell flat, the British refusing to accept the French figures of 725,000 tons as revealed by Premier Andre Tar-dieu a month ago.

LONDON, March 10. — France
will push her demands for a Mediterranean security pact along with the disarmament agreement fully confident that the United States and England will capitulate eventually rather than see the conference wrecked, a member of the French delegation told International News Service today.

The French are standing absolutely pat on the political pact
question, and believe they note evidence of a changing American opinion, pressuring at least a small American political concession.

France is determined to make no appreciable concessions for the purpose of concluding an agreement.

"President Hoover and Premier MacDonald require success of the conference for their prestige at home," the French delegate said.
"We don't need any success here
to consolidate our prestige at home."

It was made clear that unless the French obtain their desired political considerations they are determined to accept nothing at London except a vague agreement, depending on its validity upon later incorporation into a league of nations disarmament treaty.

"We are menaced with a three-power pact," the delegate continued. "That doesn't scare us. Let them do it if they want to."

The French are outspicing campaign over the British press campaign which is attempting to make France responsible in advance for possible failure of the conference.

"It is like being invited to a dinner party and being told by the hostess that if any silver is missing after dinner she will hold us responsible," one of the French delegates commented.

VICTIM OF FEUDAL SHOOTING IS DEAD

CINCINNATI, O., March 10. —
Shot and wounded eight days ago
as the culmination of a feud between two sets of brothers, Robert Wilson, 28, is dead here today as the result of three bullet wounds
which he received at that time.

Wilson's brother William, 18,
was also wounded in the melee,
which police say, occurred when Chester and Arthur Davis dared the Wilsons "to come out in the street and fight."

The Wilsons took the dare and when they stepped out into the street, they were shot down, according to authorities.

The shooting climaxed an old feud, the origin of which authorities say they do not know. The brothers often engaged in fist fights, it is alleged.

CHILD KILLED BY EXPLOSION OF KEROSENE

Two Little Sisters Seriously Burned By Flames

NEWARK, O., March 10.—Just another one of those kerosene explosions, which often result when a fire is kindled with the highly inflammable liquid, today had occurred at Purty, 19 miles west of here, and had snuffed out the life
of 11-year-old Pauline Thompson, and caused serious burns to the girl's two smaller sisters.

The explosion occurred in the Thompson home Saturday night
when the girl attempted to rekindle a fire with kerosene. A few live coals remained in the bed of ashes in the stove and when the fluid was poured on them, it exploded.

Pauline was fatally burned and her two sisters, Mabel, 9, and Mary, 8, were burned so seriously
they are not expected to live.

A boy, Roy, 5, was also burned.
His clothing caught afire, but it was quickly smothered by the mother, who, at the time, was tending a 4-weeks-old baby.

RECALL GRAND JURY MONDAY; WILL HEAR NINE CASES HERE

Infanticide Will Be Probed At Special Session

At least nine criminal cases and possibly eleven, including a second degree murder charge filed against Ella Chaney, 26, R. R. No. 2, Cederville, will be investigated by the January grand jury which re-convened in special session in Common Pleas Court Monday morning upon request of Prosecuting Attorney J. Carl Marshall.

Nearly thirty witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury.

Only nine cases, however, which have accumulated during the last two months, are docketed for consideration. They are: Ella Chaney, second degree murder; Henry Melzer and John Edgington, larceny;
Floyd Rumer, non-support; John
Q. Adams, forgery; Ora Don Coy and Guy Wilson, burglary and larceny; Pearl Hunter, auto theft.

The grand jury is expected to finish its examination of cases and make a complete report late Monday afternoon.

WAREHOUSE RAZED IN COLUMBUS FIRE

COLUMBUS, O., March 10.—A spectacular three-alarm fire today
had virtually destroyed a Spring
St. warehouse which had been occupied by a junk-dealing firm. No estimate of the loss could be gathered.

When the fire broke out, people living in nearby residences were ordered out of their homes for fear
the fire would spread. It was brought under control by firemen within forty-five minutes, however.

The contents of the warehouse,
which were mostly rags, waste paper, old automobile tires and other junk material, burned fiercely and made the blaze a spectacular one.

OHIO JOINS NATION MOURNING DEATH OF FORMER PRESIDENT

Native Son Lauded By Governor In Statement

COLUMBUS, O., March 10.—Official Ohio today joined the nation and the world in mourning the death of William Howard Taft, Buckeye state ex-president and former chief justice of the U. S.
Supreme Court, who died in Washington late Saturday.

The flag on top of the state capitol building is flying at half mast as a final tribute to the native Ohioan, who attained two of the greatest honors that the country can bestow on a citizen—the presidency of the United States and the position of Chief Justice of the country's highest court.

Governor Myers V. Cooper and a group of state officials will leave Columbus tonight for Washington
to attend the funeral.

Immediately following Taft's death Saturday evening, Governor Cooper issued a statement lauding
the ex-president.

"The passing of Ohio's most distinguished son," declared Cooper,
"is a personal loss to me—of a friend for whom I had the greatest admiration and affection."

Taft formally resided in Cincinnati, Governor Cooper's hometown.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 10.—The stars and stripes on the modest duplex house at No. 21 Massachusetts Street, home of ex-president and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, flew at half-mast today in memory of William Howard Taft.

Mr. Coolidge, the only living ex-president, said he did not plan to go to Washington to attend the funeral of Mr. Taft.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge returned yesterday from a nine week's tour of the country.

BOSTON, Mass., March 10.—Flags
of the state house and of all state buildings will be flown at half-staff for a period of thirty days in Massachusetts in memory of the late William Howard Taft.

This was by proclamation today
by Governor Frank G. Allen, who urged that "in our schools,
churches, and other public assemblies his death be marked with appropriate honor and ceremony."

THIRTY DIE IN MINE TRAGEDY

LONDON, March 10.—Thirty miners were killed and eight were injured when an elevator dropped in a shaft of the Crown Mine near Johannesburg, South Africa, according to dispatches to the evening newspapers from that city today.

The accident occurred at a change of shift. Most of the victims were killed instantly when the elevator dropped to the bottom of the shaft.

MT. CLEMENS, MICH., MENACED BY BLAZE

MT. CLEMENS, March 10.—The entire business section of Mt.
Clemens today was menaced by a fire which swept two three-story buildings in Gratiot Ave., immediately opposite Macomb County court house.

The building owned by M. L.
Greene, son, jeweler, and one owned and formerly occupied by the Mt. Clemens Savings Bank were damaged. Damage was estimated at $400,000.

One of the three men being held
for questioning today has a bullet
wound in his arm and he is understood to have confessed that he received it during the gun battle
with Manes.

COLUMBUS, O., March 10.—
Double funeral services will be held here tomorrow for Mr. and
Mrs. James Reeder, aged 70 and 72, respectively, who died within a few hours of each other, during the week-end.

Mrs. Reeder died late Saturday
and Reeder succumbed to a heart attack yesterday morning. They will be buried side by side in Union Cemetery here.

JUSTICE IS DEAD

tice of the United States supreme court, who died suddenly in Washington following extraction of a tooth, was born July 23, 1865, in

MURDER OF DOCTOR STILL BAFFLING TO CLEVELAND POLICE

Four Probes Fail To Reach Solution Of Mystery

CLEVELAND, March 10.—With each theory vanishing into thin air police were seemingly no closer to the solution of the mysterious murder of Dr. Alfred P. Scully, 62-year-old bachelor physician today
than they were a week ago.

Four separate investigations were under way today but none has unfolded any sound clue thus far that will throw any light on the perplexing slaying.

Dr. Scully, who was known as a jovial, popular "half-fellow-well-met" type, was shot and brutally beaten in his offices just a week ago tonight. The murderer was not seen and Dr. Scully's past life has revealed nothing upon which a motive can be found.

The theories that the murder was committed to settle a personal grudge or for robbery were held with the most favor by the investigators today, although they are still lacking important links to definitely ascertain the motive.

GUNMEN ROUNDED UP AFTER SHOOTING

AKRON, O., March 10.—Three men, alleged Chicago gangsters,
were being grilled by police here
today as authorities pushed an underworld clean-up to rid the city of criminals, as the result of the fatal wounding of one policeman last week.

Patrolman Harlan Manes, 23,
who was shot Saturday by a gun-
man who fled from an automobile
containing a quantity of liquor, died yesterday from the wound. A companion of the gunman was arrested at the time. He gave his name as Nathan King of Canton.

One of the three men being held
for questioning today has a bullet
wound in his arm and he is understood to have confessed that he
received it during the gun battle
with Manes.

HUSBAND AND WIFE DIE WITHIN A DAY

COLUMBUS, O., March 10.—
Double funeral services will be
held here tomorrow for Mr. and
Mrs. James Reeder, aged 70 and 72, respectively, who died within a few hours of each other, during the week-end.

Mrs. Reeder died late Saturday
and Reeder succumbed to a heart
attack yesterday morning. They will be buried side by side in Union Cemetery here.

SIX KILLED AT RAIL CROSSING

LANCASTER, Pa., March 10.—
Six persons, three married couples, were killed instantly
last night when the automobile
in which they were riding was struck by a fast Pennsylvania
passenger train at a grade
crossing in Florin, near here.

The dead have been identified as Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Holden, Mr. and Mrs. George
Fry and Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, all of this city.

PAINESVILLE, O., March 10.—
Plans for the construction of a
$1,000,000 racing plant in Geauga
County are being considered by a prominent Cleveland sportsman, according to reports here today.

The proposed track would be located between Chardon and Painesville, it is understood. Some reports state that two farms have already been purchased as a part of the plant.

KILLER LAUNCHING BATTLE TO ESCAPE PENALTY OF CRIME

Defense Summons 20
Witnesses; Surprise
Promised

COURTROOM, New Castle, Pa., March 10. — What may prove to be the final chapter
in the shabbily colorful career of Irene Schroeder opens here today when Pennsylvania's
most notorious woman
criminal faces the bar of justice to answer to a charge of first-degree murder.

Sullen, morose or unconcerned—it was difficult to accurately determine her mood—Irene begins today the most spectacular fight of her adventurous life—a fight to escape the death chair for the merciless slaying of Corporal
Brady Paul of the state highway patrol.

Twenty witnesses were rallying to her defense, awaiting the falling gavel of Judge R. Lawrence Hildebrand in Lawrence County's little courtroom to signify the battle was on.

Offsetting the score or more witnesses summoned by Thomas D.
Dickey, chief of defense counsel, were the witnesses, estimated to number more than 100, subpoenaed by the state to bolster its contention that Irene was guilty of first-degree murder for her alleged part in the Paul killing.

The mysterious "surprise defense," of course, was presaged for Irene, although no intimation as to what that defense would be was offered by Dickey. Beyond saying that the expected alibi claim would not be set up, Dickey refused to divulge his plans.

Prosecution of Irene and her alleged lover, Glenn Dague, was in the hands of District Attorney
John S. Powers and Charles J.
Margiotti. The latter, one of the best-known criminal lawyers in Pennsylvania, was appointed as special prosecutor in the case of Attorney General Cyrus E. Woods.

With the matronly Irene and her chubby-cheeked son, Donnie, 4, actually as a "blind" to ward off suspicion, the tri-state district of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio was swept by a miniature crime wave last fall, police charge.

It was not until December 27 last,
however, that the first actual—and fatal—encounter with the law occurred.

After holding up a chain store at Butler, about twenty miles from New Castle, a man and woman bandit leaped into their automobile and sped away in a northwestward direction. Only a small amount of money was obtained in the holdup.

Corporal Brady Paul and his comrade, Private Ernest Moore, of the State Highway Patrol, intercepted the fleeing car. In the ensuing gun battle, Paul was killed and Moore was seriously wounded.

Irene and Dague were captured
by a posse near Chandler, Ariz.,
two weeks after the gun duel.
Both were returned to Pennsylvania to stand trial.

Two panels of prospective jurors
were awaiting examination before court convened. The regular panel of sixty had been augmented by an additional panel of sixty more jurymen because of the expected

WRECK KILLS 30

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 10.—
Thirty persons were killed and 15 suffered serious injuries
today when a passenger train descending down a mountain
from the summer resort of Therzopolis left the rails and dropped more than 500 feet into a valley.

LIQUOR KILLS HER LOVE

Fascination Of Married Woman For Radio Announcer Ends When He Admits Drinking

CLEVELAND, O., March 10.—
A woman sits by her radio set in a city just outside of Cleveland today and weeps
—because the announcer of the radio station to whom she had taken a great fancy told her he drank hard liquor.

The woman according to the story fell in love with the announcer despite the fact that she was married and that she had never seen him.

The husband of the woman appealed his cause to the announcer and the announcer wrote the woman a letter telling her that he didn't know her

and furthermore he didn't care
for her in the least.

This failed to produce results
and the woman continued to listen to the announcer, much to the chagrin of her husband.

Finally it was decided that the only thing left to do would be to have the announcer tell the woman in a personal interview that he didn't like her.
He told her just that, but it failed to impress the woman.
But when he finally told her
he drank liquor practically all the time it broke the spell.
The woman hates a man who drinks.

DEAD EX-PRESIDENT AND HIS WIDOW

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT

SHOOTS HIMSELF AS BIRTHDAY PARTY OF FATHER BREAKING UP

Youth Ends Life As Celebration Ends; Note
Is Secret

ATHENS, O., March 10.—A minor's home at Carbondale, near here
is shrouded in sorrow today—a tragic contrast with the gay times
yesterday when an all-day birthday party was held.

The death of a son is being mourned—a son who took his own life last night after an all-day birthday party for his father had broken up. He was Dale Kennard, 19, who, like his father, was also a miner.

Going to his bedroom after the party, Dale took a small caliber
rifle and shot himself.

The seriously injured persons in the crash are Mrs. May Schwerer, the girl's mother, William Dye, 16,
and Bruce Brown, the Schwerer
chauffeur.

Mrs. Schwerer and Dye were reported to be in a critical condition.

AMERICAN LEGION DRIVES FOR MEMBERS

WEST JEFFERSON, O., March 10.—A plea for an intensive membership drive in the American Legion, today had been sounded
by state commander Dudley White,
of Norwalk, who addressed a conference of 125 post officers and delegates here yesterday.

White's plea met almost instant
response and this district of Central Ohio pledged itself to fulfill its share of the legion's membership campaign quota, which has been set at $50,000.

Sig L. Weiskerz, district chairman, in addressing the conference, outlined a plan for a state-wide campaign to bring about a more extensive use of county funds available for disabled World War veterans and their families. Under state law, every county must set aside a certain sum for care of the disabled veterans and the widows
and orphans of service men.

Hummel some years ago was corporation clerk in the secretary of state's office.

State Representative Gilbert Morgan, of Cuyahoga County, is also a Republican candidate for that office.

CADIZ, O., March 10.—Sheriff
Maurice Woster today said he had captured Henry Stinard, one of two
"walk-aways" from the Grafton
prison farm of the Mansfield reformatory, at the home of the father of the youth at Scio, near here yesterday.

Stinard, who had been committed to the penal colony for robbery by the Belmont County courts, submitted to arrest peacefully.

Stinard and Daniel Brooks, of Columbiana County, walked away
from the honor camp Wednesday.
The latter is still at large.

Stinard recently announced that he will be a candidate for a third-term nomination at the G. O. P. primary.

Stinard and Daniel Brooks, of Columbiana County, walked away
from the honor camp Wednesday.
The latter is still at large.

FORMER PRESIDENT WHO DIED SATURDAY MOURNED BY NATION

Body To Lie In State In Capitol; Burial In Arlington

WASHINGTON, March 10.

—The body of William Howard Taft lay today in his modest brick house in Wyoming Ave., while the nation and the world beat a pathway to his door with expressions of sorrow at his passing.

This simple genial man,
whose ruling passion was peace and who once confessed
he was glad to relinquish the presidency because he hated
the turmoil of it, will be given a soldier's burial tomorrow.

Probably the most peace-loving of all the presidents, he will rest
at last on an oak-covered knoll in Arlington Cemetery, where the soldier dead of all the wars America has engaged in. Soldiers will mark him to his grave, and soldiers will sleep all about him,
this jovial kindly man to whom war
was abhorrent and who gave the years of his later life to furthering the cause of peace.

Only enough, it was his own choice of a final resting place. A few days before he died, he informed members of his family that he wanted to be buried in Arlington. No president has ever been buried there, strange that so peaceful a man should choose so military a company in his final resting place, but whatever his reason, it died with him.

The spot chosen for the grave of the twenty-seventh president is one of the most beautiful in that most beautiful of all cemeteries.
It lies in the northern section—a knoll covered with weedy oaks. In the distance can be seen the new Arlington bridge being thrown across the Potomac to connect the cemented union of north and south, and still further on can be seen the classical memorial to Lincoln and the towering shaft to Washington.

Flags at half-mast on the White House and all federal buildings and the almost complete cessation of government business today attested formally to the national grief over the death of the former president and chief justice.

At army and navy posts around the world, from Alaska to Haiti
and from New York to the Philippines and Shanghai, the snowstorming of cannon at half-hour intervals gave emphasis to it.

The funeral of Justice Taft,
while accompanied by the pomp and display of the military, will be comparatively simple otherwise. That, too, is in keeping with his wishes.

Early tomorrow morning, a flag-draped caisson will roll up to the brick house in Wyoming Avenue
and on it will be placed the casket containing his body. A troop of cavalry will escort it to the capitol,
where a little more than twenty-
one years ago, in a March blizzard,
he took the oath as president.

There, for a few hours, the body
will lie in state in the rotunda.
Hard by is the Supreme Court chamber where he spent the last ten years of his busy life, doing
the work that he loved best to do.

At noon the caisson will return,
and again accompanied by the military will take the body to the All Souls Unitarian Church in Sixteenth Street, where for nearly a quarter of a century the former president was a regular attendant.

The services will be conducted by the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, who has been, for thirty years, the pastor. There will be no eulogy of the former president, although his was a career that lends itself to eulogy. No other man in American history ever occupied so many high offices—president, chief justice, cabinet officer, federal judge,
governor of both the Philippines
and of Cuba; solicitor general—truly a career that could be eulogized. But there will be none.

And that, too, is in keeping with his final wishes.

The century-old bell of the church will toll as the cortege
draws near and while the caisson is being borne within.

Then the processional and sentences by Dr. Pierce, followed by the Lord's prayer and "Lead Kindly Light" on the organ. There will be a short scriptural reading by Dr. Pierce and a prayer, and this will be followed by "Abide With Me." Both hymns were favorites of Justice Taft.

Two poems also favorites of the former president, will conclude the brief services at the church—Wordsworth's "Happy Warrior,"
and selections from Tennyson's
"Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wellington."

For the first time in the history of funerals for presidents or ex-presidents, the services will be broadcast.

and large representations from both senate and house will attend. The son of Alphonso Taft, a distinguished American who was secretary of war, attorney general and minister to Austria and Russia, the late chief justice entered public life at an early age.

Born in Cincinnati September 15, 1857, he attended public school there, was graduated from Yale and took his law degree in the Cincinnati Law School. After being admitted to the Ohio bar in 1884, he was for a time law reporter of the Cincinnati Times and Cincinnati Commercial.

His first public office was that of assistant prosecuting attorney of Hamilton County, a post he held from 1881 to 1883.

Became assistant county solicitor, judge of the superior court, solicitor-general of the United States, United States circuit judge, dean of law at the University of Cincinnati and entered the realm of national affairs as president of the United States Philippine commission in 1900.

His work on the commission attracted wide attention, and he was named first civil governor of the islands, a post he held from 1901 to 1904. During his long career he retained a deep interest in the Philippines, and affection for its people.

President Roosevelt named him secretary of war on February 1, 1904, and during his incumbency the Panama Canal construction was undertaken.

He was selected by President Roosevelt as his successor for the presidency and was elected on the Republican ticket. He became the republic's twenty-seventh president on March 4, 1909.

The dynamic Roosevelt, however, broke with him because he thought Mr. Taft rejected his liberal policies. Among the subjects of controversy was the Roosevelt plan for recall of judges, denounced by Taft.

The break led to the bull moose insurrection in 1912, with Roosevelt opposing his one-time friend for the presidency. As a result Woodrow Wilson defeated Taft for a second term.

Strained relations between Taft and Roosevelt continued for years, but finally were patched up and they became warm friends again.

Out of public life, Mr. Taft became professor of law at Yale. He was president of the national labor board for a year, president of the American Red Cross, American Bar Association, and the League to Enforce Peace.

He was named chief justice of the United States by President Harding, taking the oath of office June 30, 1921.

A big man physically—weighing well more than 300 pounds in his prime—Mr. Taft was known all over the world for his unflinching good humor. Even while serving as chief justice, he frequently broke the court's spell of solemnity by joking with an attorney. Despite his joviality, he was an indefatigable worker. Becoming deeply interested in judicial reform, he set out to reduce delays in the supreme court. When he became chief justice the court was far behind in its work, many cases having been pending for four years. When he resigned on February 3, 1930, the court was almost current.

One of the first reforms he effected was to advance consideration of criminal cases. By this method he prevented the ponderous machinery of the court being used as a means of delay, and markedly cut down appeals in such cases.

With the aid of the senate he revised other rules of the court to make quick disposition of cases possible. As president of the senior council of circuit judges of the nation he also advocated reforms in all the lesser federal courts.

One of the chief justice's dreams was to house the supreme court in a temple of justice of its own, and take it from its cramped quarters in the capitol. He finally succeeded in obtaining congressional approval for a $9,000,000 supreme court building to be built facing the capitol.

Throughout his life the chief justice had the backing of his brother, Charles P. Taft, immensely wealthy Cincinnati publisher, who died a few weeks ago. The chief justice, however, was a comparatively poor man during his long life of public service.

He was strongly federalistic in his decisions on the bench and regarded as a conservative. In most conflicts between state and federal authority, he was found supporting the supremacy of the federal fundamental law. Although not an advocate of prohibition, he consistently decided in favor of the government in its attempts to enforce the law.

The chief justice's love for children was a marked trait. One of his happiest pictures was taken at his summer home at Murray Bay, Canada, on his seventeenth birthday, surrounded by his many grandchildren.

difficulty in completing a jury. Thirty-six women were among the talesmen.

Irene's entry into crime was not presaged by the drab happenings of her early life. At the age of 16, Irene left the home of her father, Joseph Crawford, a Benwood, W. Va., fishmonger, to become the wife of Homer Schroeder.

To the couple was born one son, Donnie, now 5, at this time in the custody of Joan Dunlap, Lawrence County parole officer.

Separating from her husband, Irene went first to Wheeling where she obtained work as a waitress. From Wheeling she drifted aimlessly, without definite objective, to Canton and other Ohio cities, finally returning to Wheeling where she met Dague.

Suave, dapper and undeniably handsome, the young automobile salesman, contacted an alliance with Irene that ended finally with Dague forsaking his wife for the blonde waitress. Whether because of financial stress or because of the "thrills" held out by a life of crime, the two are charged with having planned a series of hold-ups.

Ironically enough, the identical system of communication that brings these words to THE GAZETTE readers through the leased wire network of International News Service was the cause of the couple's downfall.

A few minutes after the hold up of the Butler store the newly-installed printing telegraph system of the state police was broadcasting the bandits' description throughout Pennsylvania. A few miles southeast of New Castle, Paul and Moore saw a speeding machine bearing down upon them from the direction of Butler. Quick suspicion in the officers' minds was somewhat allayed when, in response to their orders, the car slowed down to a halt. In the car, beside the driver, were a young mother and her son.

Perhaps the officers' relaxed vigilance precipitated the tragedy. At any rate, after a few words of conversation, the occupants of the car suddenly whipped out pistols and began firing.

Corporal Paul crumpled to the roadside, fatally wounded, as the first volley of shots rang out. Writhing in agony on the ground, he tugged at his gun to return the fire. Meanwhile, Private Moore was sending shot after shot through the windshield of the machine as fast as he could pull the trigger.

With Paul disabled, the bandits coolly turned their attention to Moore. He, too, dropped as a leaden slug tore through his nose. A man leaped from the death car, hastily rolled Paul's body from in front of the wheels, and the machine sped on.

Occupants of the car, police charge, were Irene, Dague, Irene's 4-year-old son, Donnie, and her brother, Joe Crawford, Jr. Shortly after the shooting, the fugitives held up and confiscated a car just outside of New Castle. In the commandeered machine they disappeared as though the earth had swallowed them.

About a week later came the first "break" in the nation-wide manhunt that had been organized. Donnie was found at the home of Irene's father in Benwood.

A fine-comb search of the tri-state district proved fruitless. But far from her Pennsylvania haunts, Irene was active. Into the office of Charles H. Wright, sheriff of Maricopa County, Arizona, was flashed a report that two deputy sheriffs had been shot down and another kidnaped by three bandits at Chandler, a few miles from Phoenix.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

The kidnaped man, Joseph Chapman, was tossed from the car by the bandits when they attempted to flee afoot from a pursuing posse headed by Sheriff Wright. For more than six hours the trapped trio held off a force of more than 100 men.

They proved to be Irene, Dague and a man who gave his name as "Joe Wells." Lee Wright, one of the men wounded by the bandits, died soon after Irene and Dague were returned to Pennsylvania. Wells is awaiting trial at Phoenix for the slaying of Wright.

On a future date those getting the highest grades will be announced. The next test will be given during the music week which will come the first of May.

The students of Central High as well as the students of all the Xenia public schools are looking forward to the spring vacation period that will come at the close of three more weeks of school. School will let out March 28 and will resume again April 7 giving pupils one full week of leisure.

The seniors are staging a contest to see who can sell the most tickets for the senior benefit play "And Home Came Ted." The senior class is divided into two groups. Sarah Davidson is the captain of one team and Roland Rice of the other. The side that sells the most tickets will be entertained by the side that sells the least number of tickets to the extent of a big supper. The play will be given Friday night, March 14 at eight o'clock. Not only is this play a glom chaser but a mystery thriller as well. The production is under the direction of S. A. Evjen, class advisor.

In the recent intra-mural basketball games held in the school gymnasium of which the faculty won out for the second straight year, 382 points were registered by the five teams that took part in the contests. The faculty registered eighty-nine points and was followed closely by the freshmen with eighty-eight. The juniors were next with seventy-six, followed by the sophomores with seventy and the seniors with fifty-nine. Coach "Pinky" Wilson was the high individual scorer of the contests with fifty-three points made on a basis of twenty-five field goals and three fouls. He was followed by Creamer of the freshman team with twenty-eight. Shaffer, junior, and Finlay, senior, came next with twenty-five points each.

The Central High Review has been running on a losing basis all year and at recent meeting of the student council it was decided to put out a mimeographed paper for the remaining few weeks in order to try to break even for the year. All Reviews in the future with the exception of the class editions will be printed on mimeograph paper.

The time is not far off when the distribution of the Cen-Sen will begin. Nearly all the pictures for the annual have been taken and the book is expected to go to press within a few weeks. A subscription campaign will begin next week and all those wishing to purchase their year books are advised to get their order in now or they will be unable to get a book. The annual is expected to be full of new ideas this year and is said to be an exceptionally good one.

At the county basketball tournament held in the Central gym last week the junior and senior classes had charge of the sale of all candies, pop, ice cream and etc. This is an annual custom and is always looked forward to with much interest by members of both classes. The seniors had charge of one meal and realized a neat sum from their efforts. Both classes made a good profit from their other sales also. Mrs. Wolf gave one meal under the auspices of the cooking classes.

The office officials presented a motion picture show in the auditorium Wednesday afternoon for the benefit of the office fund. An admission of five cents was charged but as the show had been given before those in charge saw fit to return the nickels to the patrons. The show proved to be a disappointment to the students as well as the office employees.

The senior class is at this time very busy trying to select invitations for the annual graduation exercises. A committee has been appointed to select the best of those presented by the different salesmen and these will be voted on by the class within a few days.

The Hi-Y Club recently took in six new members and this brings the club fold to twenty-two now. A few more members will probably be chosen in the last few weeks of school to take the place of the present seniors. Mr. Miller also resigned as advisor to the club due to too much extra work. Mr. Shumaker and Coach Wilson were selected to take his place. Several members of the club along with Mr. Woodruff and Mr. Shumaker attended a meeting of Hi-Y boys in Washington Wednesday night. Hi-Y clubs were present from Circleville, Hillsboro, Chillicothe, Greenfield, Xenia and Washington. A total of about 140 fellows were present for the joint meeting. Mr. Chambers of the state office was present and delivered the main address of the evening. Presidents of the clubs present also gave short talks. A meeting similar to this was held one year ago and met with such approval that the idea was tried again. It is expected to become an annual affair from now on.

The sophomore class sponsored a St. Patrick's Day dance in school gymnasium Thursday night from eight until eleven and it proved to be a big success. A large crowd attended and everyone had a very enjoyable evening. It was the first dance that has ever been given by the sophomores and they showed the rest of the school that they are capable of giving a successful affair. The ceiling of the gym was decorated in a very attractive manner of green and white streamers and the ends and walls were also appropriately decorated for the occasion. Paul Smitley's orchestra of Springfield furnished the music for the night.

At 8:35 Friday morning a large pep assembly was held to cheer the basketball team on to victory before leaving for the tournament. Cheer leader, John Beacham, led the assembly in a few rousing cheers and then the players were dismissed from the auditorium that they might get started on their journey. Those holding tickets for the game were then dismissed and the rest of the students returned to their classes.

Business And Professional Women's Club Joins In National Celebration

The Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club, which is joining in the national observance of Business and Professional Women's Club Week from March 9 to 16, was organized eight years ago, October, 1921 with sixteen charter members.

Miss Allegra Hawes was chosen as president of the new organization and served for two years. She was succeeded by Miss Faye Ledbetter and Miss Faye Cavanaugh, Miss Henryetta Logan, Miss Elsie Canby and Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson have also successfully directed the affairs of the organization. Miss Nellie Fletcher was elected to the office but left the city and accepted a position in Palm Beach, Fla., before assuming office.

The local club became a member of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs in March, 1922, and has since been actively identified with the work of the federation. Delegates from the local club have attended national and state conventions, and Xenia members have been honored with state offices, and have also held chairmanships of important committees.

The Xenia club holds its regular meeting the third Thursday of each month. A dinner precedes the program. Many speakers who are prominent in various lines of business or professions have addressed the local club and a number of entertaining programs have been furnished by talented members. The club has taken an especial interest in local affairs and its members have co-operated in all civic enterprises. Each year the club sends Christmas gifts to the inmates of the Girl's Industrial Home at Delaware, Ohio, and also carries out various enterprises in the way of local community work.

Each spring the club acts as hostess to young women members of the graduating classes of Central and St. Bridget High Schools and presents programs aimed to help the young women in the selection of a business or professional career. This vocational meeting will be the outstanding feature of the April meeting of the club.

The activities of the local club are presented to the federation through the national club magazine "The Independent Woman" and the Ohio State Bulletin.

The Business and Professional Women's Club now numbers 52,000 members in the United States and steps are now being taken toward the organization of international federations.

The aim of the local club is to put into practice the national club slogan which is "Better Business Women for a Better Business World."

Xenia club officers for the year 1929-1930 are as follows:

Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, president; Miss Virginia Fletcher, vice-president; Miss Glenna Dinwiddie, recording secretary; Miss Helen Hurley, corresponding secretary; Miss Stella Tuhey, treasurer, and Miss Wilma Flomerfelt, assistant treasurer.

Executive committee: Miss Faye Cavanaugh, program; Miss Helen Dodds, finance; Miss Faye Ledbetter, membership; Miss Nellie McKay, publicity; Mrs. Clara Reutinger, community; Mrs. Pearl Wittemyer, health and recreation; Miss Allegra Hawes, legislation; Mrs. Clara Henrie, personnel research; Miss Mina St. John, federation; Miss Helen Graham, music and Miss Letitia Dillencourt, parliamentarian.

DISTRICT DEPUTY TO PRESIDE AT MEETING.

Mr. Ben Jennings, Dayton, district deputy of Junior Order, United American Mechanics, will preside at the meeting of the thirteenth district, at Junior Hall, Xenia, Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Senator Pollock of Canton, state organizer of the Junior Order will be a speaker on the program. Music and readings will also be a part of the program.

The meeting will be a "booster meeting" at which time a membership campaign will be launched.

Mrs. A. E. Faulkner, junior past national councillor and Mrs. A. O. Woods, junior past state councillor of the Daughters of America will be present at the meeting. Music will be furnished by Al Jones and his orchestra for dancing to follow. All orders from Greene and Montgomery Counties are asked to be present.

JUICY NUPITALS UNITE COUPLE.

Mrs. Dora Conklin, W. Second St., became the bride of Mr. Frank R. Stryker, near Xenia, Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, the ceremony taking place at the parsonage of Trinity M. E. Church, E. Main St.

The single ring service was read by the bride's pastor, the Rev. L. A. Washburn and Mrs. Washburn was the only witness.

A flock of ashes or roses crepe de chine was chosen by the bride for her marriage.

An informal dinner party for members of the immediate family was enjoyed at their home on W. Second St., Sunday.

POSTPONE BANQUET OF BROTHERHOOD.

Owing to unforeseen circumstances, the Lutheran Brotherhood fish supper will be postponed until March 27. It is announced by Mr. John E. Kohl, chairman of arrangements.

Brevity of time added to the circumstances and it was deemed advisable to sell tickets in order that adequate preparations for the meal could be made.

Mr. Archer Maxwell, 111 Stetson Road, was named on the publicity committee and will prepare window placards and other signs to announce the social and supper by the men of the First Lutheran Church for the general public.

Tickets will be available in the places of business where the placards are displayed.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Horton (with Harper) of Painesville, are announcing the birth of a daughter, Sunday. The baby has been named Jeanette Aileen.

XENIAN SWORN AS FEDERAL EMPLOYEE

The New Hope Aid Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Cora Devos Thursday. All are invited to be present.

Miss Thelma Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Wagner, W. Third St., was sworn in Saturday as clerk-stenographer in the Dayton office of U. S. District Attorney, Haveth E. Mann, Cincinnati.

Richard Hildebrand, Wilmington city solicitor, was sworn in as permanent deputy in charge of the Dayton office at the same time and Judge Harry Rutzong, Dayton, was sworn in as special deputy.

Miss Wagner went to Cincinnati Monday to acquaint herself with her duties in the Cincinnati office before beginning her duties in Dayton. She passed a civil service examination to receive appointment to the position.

DEPUTY WILL AID TAX COLLECTION

A deputy collector of internal revenue, who will assist taxpayers in preparing their returns, will be stationed at the Xenia Post Office building from Tuesday to Thursday this week for the convenience of those persons who are required by law to file federal income tax returns. No charge will be made for this service.

In order to avoid penalty and interest the matter of filing an income tax return should be given immediate attention, it is announced.

FORMAL AWARD TO CENTRAL TUESDAY

Formal award of the 1930 basketball championship of the Miami Valley League to Xenia Central High, winner of the title for three successive years, will be made at the annual spring meeting of representatives of the six league schools at the Dayton Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night, according to Coach Walter C. "Pinky" Wilson.

Spring sport schedules, including tennis, golf, baseball and track, will also be mapped out at the meeting.

MISS M'DONNELL TO BE HEARD IN DAYTON

Miss Eleanor McDonnell, this city, winner of the recent Atwater Kent southern Ohio radio audition contest, will be guest soloist at the annual St. Patrick's Day banquet Monday night, March 17, at the Rike-Kumler dining room in Dayton under auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the women's auxiliary. Principal speaker for the evening will be James E. Deery, Indianapolis, Ind., former national president of the order.

ROOF CATCHES FIRE.

Sparks from a chimney flue falling on a roof ignited the wood shingles and burned a small hole in the roof at a residence at 36 Chestnut St., owned by John Deryck and occupied by Captain Ozell H. TRIPLE ACTION ends coughs FAST

"It was pitiful—such a little girl and such a BIG cough."

"There is something terribly pathetic about a little girl coughing. My niece was on a visit to me and somehow she caught a bad cough. I was worried all night. On the advice of the druggist I gave her Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. It worked like a charm. In four hours her cough was much better. Just to be sure I kept her in the house for two days—and she got well completely."

Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup ends coughs so quickly because it has Triple Action: 1—It soothes. 2—is mildly laxative. 3—clears air passages. Made by the makers of the famous Smith Brothers' Cough Drops.

INTERESTING PROGRAMS MARK ANNIVERSARY OF CHURCH HERE

Large congregations both morning and evening attended special services at the First United Presbyterian Church Sunday celebrating the one hundred and twentieth anniversary of the church.

A brilliant day, palms, baskets of flowers, special musical numbers and appropriate messages combined to make the day all that had been hoped for by those who arranged the programs.

The Rev. James P. Lytle, pastor, preached the anniversary sermon at the morning service, using his subject: "Hitherto-Henceforth" and Dr. J. Knox Montgomery, president of Muskingum College, New Concord, addressed a large congregation at union church services in the evening.

The celebration will be continued to Wednesday evening when a coronation dinner will be enjoyed at the church and Dr. H. B. McElree, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church, will bring greetings from the Presbytery and from the churches of Xenia, Edwin Galloway, only living member of the session who was a member when Dr. S. E. Martin, under whose regime the church was dedicated, came to the church, will give a history of the congregation as a feature of the after-dinner program.

The anniversary services Sunday also combined services dedicating the church following its recent rededication. Numerous expressions of approval of the newly finished rededication were given by worshippers and messages of congratulations from Dr. S. E. Martin and Dr. D. D. Dodds, D. D., former pastors, were read at the morning services. The Psalms of praise and the Scriptures were those used at the dedication of the edifice, April 10, 1910.

The Rev. Mr. Lytle gave a brief review of the 120 years of existence of the congregation, pointing out the fact that there have been eleven pastors, tens of thousands of dollars contributed to missionary work at home and abroad and that the present physical equipment is now in splendid condition with an estimated replacement value of about $100,000.

The Rev. Mr. Lytle urged upon his people to look back and note the Divine blessings bestowed in a challenge to the present membership to take courage and face the future with joyful anticipation. Turning from the cry of the prophet, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us" to the song of the Psalmist, "So the Lord is round about His people from henceforth even forever", the Rev. Mr. Lytle insisted that as "hitherto" so "henceforth" this church will proclaim God's Word; declare the love of God in Jesus Christ; witness to the joy of the Lord; point to the peace of God and experience the fact of life in Christ. "Christ not only gave Himself for His people—He gave Himself to them," he declared.

Dr. Montgomery spoke at the evening services on "The Church's Biggest Business", lauding the efforts of the pioneers in Christianity and the missionaries who have since gone beyond the eastern and kind co-operation of the Xenia Ministerial Association and to The Gazette for the generous space given to announce and relate some of the facts concerning this one hundred and twentieth anniversary. Union services will be held next Sunday evening in the First Presbyterian Church at which time the Rev. Dr. H. B. McElree will preach.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, followed by burial in Woodland Cemetery. The Rev. W. H. Tilford of the First Presbyterian Church will be in charge of the services. Friends may call at the residence Tuesday evening between 7 and 9 o'clock.

ALLEN POE TIFFANY, VETERAN BUSINESS MAN, DIES SUNDAY

Allen Poe Tiffany, well-known Xenia merchant and one of the oldest active business men in the city, died at his home, 316 E. Second St., Sunday night at 10:40 o'clock following a brief serious illness. He would have been seventy-one years of age Wednesday.

Mr. Tiffany had been in failing health for the last year, but his condition had shown an improvement during the last few months. Last Tuesday, after attending a theater with Mrs. Tiffany, he collapsed on the floor after arriving home. The condition is believed to have resulted from stoppage of circulation which caused a blood clot on the brain. He never rallied from the sudden attack, and his condition gradually grew worse until his death.

Mr. Tiffany was born in Xenia, March 12, 1859, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David B. Tiffany. He had always made his home here and had conducted a jewelry business on S. Detroit St., in the same location, for the last fifty years. For many years his son, George Tiffany, had been associated with his father and in recent years had taken over the responsibility of the business. Mr. Tiffany was an active member of Xenia Lodge No. 52, I. O. O. F. and of the Encampment and for several years served as Noble Grand of the lodge. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Eugenia Lessey Tiffany, and his one son, George, W. Second St.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, followed by burial in Woodland Cemetery. The Rev. W. H. Tilford of the First Presbyterian Church will be in charge of the services. Friends may call at the residence Tuesday evening between 7 and 9 o'clock.

MILK PRODUCERS TO MEET IN DAYTON

Harry Hartke, chairman of the dairy advisory committee of the federal farm board and Professor McBride of Ohio State University, will be principal speakers at the fourth annual meeting of the Miami Valley Co-operative Milk Producers Association at the Dayton Industries Building, Dayton, Tuesday, March 11. Mrs. J. B. Mason will appear on the program with readings.

Free lunch will be served at the association office and the program will start at 1 p. m. The association includes twelve counties in the Miami Valley. F. T. Flynn, represents Greene County on the association board of directors.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein: then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice. Before the Lord: for he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth: he shall judge the world with right, counciness, and the people with his truth.—Psalm, xcvi, 12, 13.

BOOK "LARNIN'" AGAIN

With the recent opening of the first school as a result of the personal interest of President Hoover the privilege of "book larnin'" comes to the Blue Ridge Mountain community of Dark Hollow.

Successive generations of mountain mothers have hoped for that development. The story of how their dreams came true has distinct charm for it portrays the interest of descendants of the purest American stock who became stragglers on the trail when the course of empire westward took its way facing the natural obstacle of one of America's oldest and most rugged mountain ranges.

Roy Burraker, 12, the boy who met the President as he lured trout in the singing waters of Stony Brook, did not sleep the night before. He it was who raised the flag for the first time over the little mountain school. It was the outstanding event of his life.

Twelve members of the Burraker family were on hand soon after dawn for the opening of the school. They included Grandfather Burraker, 89, and Grandmother Burraker, 72, both of whom walked miles to pay their first visit to a school house. Celia Burraker was the only one of the 11 girls, who wore a hat. It was a poke bonnet gay with morning glories and blue ribbons.

All America would have deemed it a privilege to have looked in on the opening of this little mountain school. There yesterday and today met. There arrested development and progress joined hands to face the future. Mountain folks are most charming in their own atmosphere for their simplicity and their guilelessness. They find happiness and serenity in life, if you may judge from their faces. In war and in peace they have occasionally given to their country great men and women.

And so there comes to them now "book larnin'." May it never destroy the charm of their simple virtues or take from them any degree of happiness!

SONG FOR OHIO

Wanted a real Ohio Song—Maryland has her famous song "Maryland My Maryland," Wisconsin has her stirring battle cry "On Wisconsin," but Ohio has neither an officially adopted song or even a popular Ohio song. Along with the Ohio Seal and the Ohio Flag the Director of Education, J. L. Clifton, and others feel that there should be an officially recognized state song.

The State Department of Education will conduct a state-wide contest for a suitable song. Substantial prizes will be offered and no one is barred from submitting one that treats in a poetic way of Ohio's beauty, her worth in civic, educational and commercial progress.

The rules will be few. The poem should have at least three stanzas. Dr. Clifton says, "The lyric submitted, in order to be given consideration, must be of high literary type, lend itself to musical setting and treat of the commonwealth, her greatness and grandeur." If a musical setting is submitted with the poem, it must be of equal merit. It is not necessary, however, to submit music with the poem. The winning song will be broadcast over several radio stations in Ohio and Ohio's 1,500,000 pupils will be afforded an opportunity to learn the song this year.

"A quarter of the Canadian navy was scrapped recently when a gale disposed of the mine sweeper Thiepval," says the Toronto Globe. Yet all the "storms" we have read about at the London conference haven't sunk a single submarine, spurious or otherwise!

The animosity displayed by certain senators in Washington toward the London conference suggests that they are peeved at the thought that there can be talk that is listened to.

The WAY of the WORLD

BIGGER PRIZES

Rich men today are richer than ever in history. High places are higher than ever. Big jobs are bigger than ever. In this speeded up, complex world, good work is more important than it ever was. Hard to understand, in the face of facts, why some young men and women think opportunities are fewer and less attractive than they used to be. Anybody who thinks at all ought to know that today's chances are the best ever. Today there is more adventure in life than there was a generation ago. There are more places to get to and more places worth getting to. Push has more power in the world and pull has less power than in father's and grandfather's day. Competition is keener, but the prizes are finer.

SERIOUS FLORIDA

Don't get the idea Florida is just a play spot. There are more things than tourists in Florida. Recently the governor of the state announced a "Citizenship Week." This was followed by a citizenship campaign put on by the Florida Bar association. Throughout the state the duties and privileges of citizenship have been emphasized in schools and churches. Don't take all your ideas of Florida from the beach pictures.

HOLLANDIZING OURSELVES

Holland pumps dry an enormous canal and adds a half million acres to the country. Holland adjusts herself to circumstances, makes the best of nature. Human folk can do the same thing. Think of the waste time, misdirected energy and misbehavior in our lives. We can convert bad soil into good. We can become productive where we have never got results. We are full of possibilities. What we need is to clear up the waste and give ourselves some intensive cultivation.

DOING NOTHING

Doing nothing is sometimes the best policy. Occasionally the right thing for us to do is to make up our minds definitely to do nothing. Strange how many problems settle themselves. Half the bridges we see ahead never have to be crossed. Many worrisome problems drop away when we finally make up our minds to do nothing about them.

THE QUESTION BOX

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

WHAT three men hold the three highest offices in the U. S. government?

The president certainly is one. The supreme court chief justice probably is another, though his chief's title and $500 yearly more pay are all he has to make him more important than the eight associate justices. As a third the speaker of the house of representatives seems the best guess, though vice presidential partisans are sure to dispute this claim. However, the speaker has a congressional vote and the vice president has none except in the event of a senate tie, which appears to give the edge to the former.

AVIATION

Did two British R. F. C. officers cross the Atlantic in an open cockpit plane some time in 1918 or 1919? John Alcock and A. W. Brown made a non-stop flight from Newfoundland to Ireland June 14-15, 1919. Harry G. Hawker and MacKenzie Grieve made a similar attempt May 18, the same year, but were forced down in mid-ocean, though both were rescued.

SPIRIT CONTROL

What makes it possible for a ouija board to answer questions? "The Question Box's" opinion is that one of the persons at the board makes it possible—by manipulating it, more or less consciously.

SMALL VALUE

What value has a 1923 five-cent piece from the "Kroningrijk der Nederlanden?" None in this country; its face in Holland.

TUBES UNDER HUDSON

When did the Hudson tubes, 33rd street, New York City, to Park Place, Newark, N. J., begin to operate?

The section of the Hudson tubes extending to 33rd street was completed in 1910; work on the Newark extension was completed in July, 1911.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—The only friend of mine who tells me he really enjoyed the performance of Mei Lan-fang, China's greatest actor, is a man who, I've always felt, was down in my heart, is a faker.

Bob Benchley, the Drammer Dammer, says this is about the Chin's performance:

"If I got less out of the performance than was there, I was more than outbalanced by the number of people who get a great deal more out of it than even Mei Lan-fang himself suspected. I have not heard more phony 'bravos' since the first performance of the 'Chauve Souris'."

CARD ADDICTS

Chronic card playing, according to a recent spiel by Old Doc Alder, Viennese psycho-analyst, is nothing more than the manifestation of an acute inferiority complex. Pinocchio, Seven-Toed-Pete, Mexican, five-card stud, bridge or even Old Maid—it's all the same. "You're indulging in an easy and indirect means of asserting superiority and are psychologically linked with drug addicts, drunkards and spoiled children."

Sounds to me as if "The Doc" had been "taken" recently. George Peck, The Sage of Gramercy, talks the same way, every time you raise him out of the pot on a pair of solid deuces.

TOUGH BREAK

Max D. Steuer, New York's leading Blackstone Brother, arrived on the Carmania, from foreign parts, too late to attend the other day, the nuptials of Miss Curry (whose Paw is Head Man in Tammany Hall) and a Massachusetts barrister known as McCarthy.

"Believe me," said Max, "I'd rather have lost the cost of building the ship than miss that ceremony."

After playing the game year in, year out, in fair and stormy weather, it was a tough break. Max. But call it an act of God—like Fanny Brice's ex-nose, and Helen Hayes's baby!

HIS MASTER'S VOICE—WHICH?

When Senate Passes Tariff Bill Fight Will Just Begin—Stewart

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Whence comes the nation that the tariff fight will be over when the senate passes the tariff bill?

The real fight will be between the senate at the house of representatives. The preliminaries, still in progress, signify nothing in particular. Betting on the main encounter's outcome is about 50-50. A draw is a distinct possibility.

That is to say, the two houses may fall to get together. In other words, perhaps no bill at all will go through. For nearly a year congress has been struggling with the tariff. It is at least as likely as not that the struggle will end with the tariff remaining just as it is now.

Beginning last spring, the supposition was that the tariff was to be changed principally for agriculture's benefit.

The farmers complained that the protection enjoyed by the manufacturers had made prices ungodly high on everything agriculture has to pay for, but that they themselves were so inadequately protected that prices stayed low on everything they had to sell.

They wanted to be protected equally with the industries—maybe not in quite the same way, but somehow or other.

This was what it was assumed the seventy-first congress was going to attend when it met in extra session in April, 1929, soon after President Hoover had been inaugurated.

The representatives promptly got busy, inasmuch as theirs is the house in which all financial legislation must originate.

The result was far from what agriculture had expected.

The representatives did, indeed, increase tariffs. They boosted them to the highest levels ever known in the world's history, but the advances almost all were on manufactured products. Such advances as agriculture did get were enormously more than offset by the industrial increases.

True, the new farm board was created, to do what it could for the distressed agriculturists. However, in case the new board actually helped the farmers to make any more money, it was evident that the manufacturers' increased tariff advantage would enable the industrial magnates to take it away from them in less than no time.

The assertion that the tariff bill passed by the representatives was something fearful and wonderful can hardly be successfully disputed, considering that it even shocked some of the most unmitigated old protectionists in the senate, when it arrived at their end of the Capitol building to be acted on.

To be sure, big business somehow missed gaining control of the senate at the 1928 election. It gained control of the house of representatives, and for awhile it thought it was in control of the senate also, but as to the latter body one of its cogs slipped somewhere.

Accordingly the senators immediately began taking the representatives' bill apart and making it over again—decidedly less to the manufacturers' interest; decidedly more to agriculture's.

Naturally the representatives' leaders, who framed the bill, have gone almost delirious with indignation as they watched this performance. It accounts for the amount of howling they have done concerning the time the senate was wasting. It is a fact the job took considerable time. It was a long bill and nearly every line of it has been altered.

However, does it stand to reason that the representatives will acquiesce tamely when the bill gets back for them to express their opinion of?

The representatives passed a bill to help manufacturing at agriculture's expense. The senators plainly are preparing to pass a bill to help agriculture at manufacturing's expense.

A conference committee, representing both houses, will have to take the two bills and see if it can agree on a compromise.

The representatives certainly will prefer the present law to the senators' bill and the senators certainly will prefer the present law to the representatives' bill.

President Hoover's attitude is much debated.

Some folks say he never did like the house bill and is secretly pleased with the senate's work—though it generally is assumed that he and the leaders of the house majority are very friendly, while the senators responsible for disfiguring the house's tariff measure are opposed to him.

Nevertheless, if the president felt that his friends among the representatives were overdoing their tariff-boosting program, it is queer that he did not tell them so when they were overdoing it, and stop them.

Liver and Bacon
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Green Beans Cabbage-Carrot Salad
Creamy Rice Pudding Coffee

The rice pudding should be cooked when you are doing your baking and allowed to get cold before serving. Fry the bacon brown and crisp, put on platter, then add the liver which has been parboiled, drained and rolled in flour, pepper and salt. Fry liver until brown and put on platter, arranging bacon curls for garnish.

Today's Recipes

Old-fashioned Creamy Rice Pudding—Four cups milk, one-fourth cup rice, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup sugar, nutmeg. Wash the rice, mix it with the other ingredients and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake two hours in a very slow oven (275 degrees Fahrenheit), stirring at least three times during the first hour to break the crust which will form. One-half cup of raisins may be added when the pudding is mixed. Serve very cold.

Suggestions

Important Trifles
Almost any cookie dough may be used as an ice box cookie simply by chilling well in the refrigerator. These are so easily made that a roll of the dough should be kept on hand all the time.

Tiny silver candies and other decorations for special cakes, which won't stand baking, may be placed on the cakes with a tiny bit of plain sugar and water icing. This acts as glue and soon hardens, holding the decoration firmly in place.

Root vegetables, such as carrots, beets, etc., should be trimmed and brushed before storing. Leave an inch or two of the tops, and put away in a cool, dry place. If stored in your electric refrigerator, wrap them in a damp cloth. If vegetables are frosted or frozen when received, drop them in cold water (ice water is best) until they are thawed out. They will be crisp and tasty if treated in this way.

Cookies may be softened by placing a cup of boiling water in the tin with them, and shutting the box tightly. If necessary, renew the boiling water.

Butter Frosting

One-half cup butter, two egg yolks, one and one-half cups confectioner's sugar, one-half cup almonds. Cream the butter, add the sugar and the egg yolk. Spread on the cake when ready to use. Blanch the almonds, bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until light brown. Cut in pieces and sprinkle on the frosting.

are highly flavored. I found I liked it when I took it with cream and sugar as a cereal. (I would!) Many of the newcomers learn to like it straight very much. It is eaten freely by the natives and, as a result, many of them are overweight.

I think that the food that stands out most prominently to us all is the pineapple. You really have never tasted what fresh pineapple is like until you have eaten one that is ripened where it grows. They are so tender and delicious that you are tempted to overeat; many do when they first go there, and consequently get tender mouths, because, like other acid-tasting foods, pineapple is acid until it is digested.

The tree-ripened bananas are also most delicious. The mango, while very delicious, was not such a favorite with us. Another fruit that grows freely there is the avocado. I didn't indulge much in those, because they are so fattening, but they are delicious.

Gaining Weight

Mrs. B.—Yes, it is surprising how fast and how high the weight can run up, after unlimited indulgence in food. Part of this weight is excess water that the tissues have to hold on to, to dilute the excess nutriment in the blood and tissue fluids in order to keep the osmotic pressure right. (You will always notice you are very thirsty after this indulgence, and drink a lot of water, most of which is retained with the food.) But have you not found that the weight will go down just as rapidly if you under-eat the next day to the same extent that you overate?

I find many times that after a good evening dinner (when I am accustomed to having nothing but fruit and skim milk), followed by an evening of bridge, with continuous nibbling of candy and nuts, and a midnight supper, my weight may be four pounds higher the next morning. But I have found that by having, on the day following, a very low calorie count—say 400 to 500—and taking nothing salty, that most of the weight will go off just as rapidly. I have also found that it takes me five days on the ordinary reducing number of calories to lose to where I was before the feast. I wrote this up once; perhaps you saw it. Five Days of Fasting for one Day of Feasting! Of course, the fasting part is not true.

The gifted illustrator of my book—"the little rascal"—my nephew, who was then ten years old, is now going through college on his share of the royalties. No, he never developed along any particular artistic lines, although I remember that while in high school he seemed to be the official decorator of the girls' sweaters when they wore them embellished with heads and other figures.

I have not yet written up my Honolulu trip, but I am always planning to. Had the most wonderful vacation I have ever had in my life. The Paradise of the Pacific rightly describes the Hawaiian Islands.

Central Eliminated By Chaminade 25 To 23

BUCCANEER RALLY ARRIVES TOO LATE TO BRING ABOUT VICTORY

Slow Start Spells Defeat Despite Late Awakening; Bell Performs Ably And Smittle Also Shines In Defeat

By PHIL FRAME

XENIA CENTRAL HIGH'S 1929-30 basketball season passed into history when the Bucs were eliminated by Dayton Chaminade by a two-point margin, 25 to 23 in the second round of the Class A division of the Southwestern sectional state tournament at the fairgrounds coliseum in Dayton Saturday afternoon.

Trailing from start to finish and at one time early in the third quarter on the short end of an 18 to 6 score, Xenia staged its customary magnificent second half rally but this time in vain for the twelve-point handicap proved too great an obstacle to surmount.

As usual, the Bucs displayed poor form in the first half and their lethargic exhibition in the first two periods settled the verdict then and there.

Baskets by Selz and Gates and a gift shot by Gates gave the scrappy Chaminade quintet a 5 to 0 advantage before the game was more than a few minutes old. Smittle broke the ice when he dribbled in for a short shot after which Zwiesler added a free throw giving Chaminade a 6 to 2 lead when the first period closed.

The second period was a repetition of the first and Chaminade's margin grew to ten points on a basket by Sherry and two sensational one-hand tosses by Zwiesler. Bell tipped in a two-pointer and Smittle shot Xenia's first foul after the Bucs had missed their first seven chances to add points from the charity line. The half-time score was 12 to 5.

The third period was inaugurated with a basket by Sherry after which Bell made a free throw. Successive fielders by Sherry and Selz, both from difficult angles, increased Chaminade's lead to 18 to 6 and at this point John Hurley, Xenia center, retired from the game on personal fouls and Howard Thompson went to center.

From then on Xenia appeared to find itself and slowly but surely Chaminade's advantage dwindled, giving rise to a hope that maybe the Bucs could duplicate their first round comeback against Springfield and pull the game out of the fire.

It was almost a forlorn hope but the seemingly impossible almost happened. Thompson celebrated his entry into the game with a neat close-in basket and Smittle followed with a fielder. Sherry did likewise for the Dayton quintet but again Smittle contributed a basket and Bell a foul making the score 20 to 12 at the end of the third quarter, both teams having tallied eight points in this stanza.

Still ahead by seven points, Chaminade appeared to have the game well in hand. Thompson sank a short shot but so did Westendorf for Chaminade and the lead remained stationary. Time was coming short and the play became fast and furious. Price hit the net for Xenia and Sherry weighed in with a free throw. Then Smittle went out on personals for Xenia and Dice took his place.

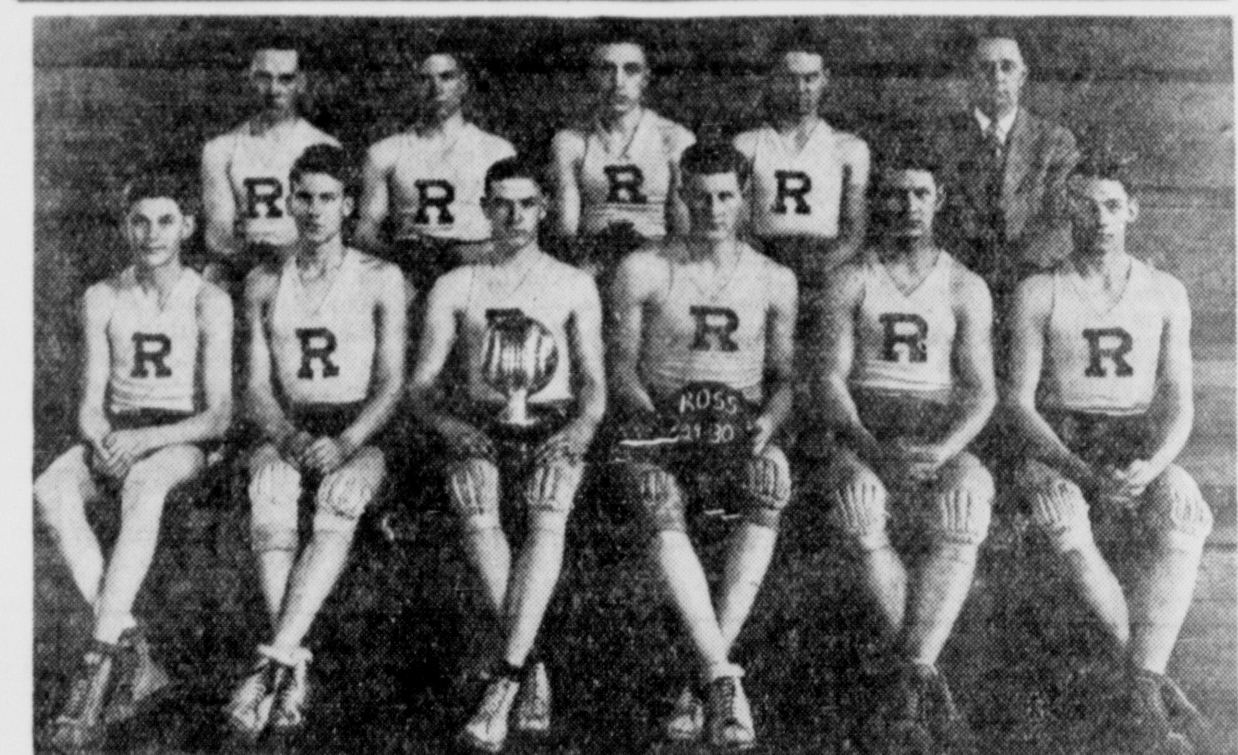

ELINOR SMITH HAS ALTITUDE RECORD

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Mar. 10.—Elinor Smith, aviator, today claimed the altitude record for women after landing here following her flight. Miss Smith said she attained a height of 20,000 feet.

The previous altitude record was 22,996 feet made by Mrs. Marvel Crosson, of Los Angeles, in 1929.

Miss Smith, a resident of Freeport, L. I., landed approximately one hour after taking off.

ROSS HIGH, COUNTY CHAMPS, HAD GOOD RECORD

One of the strongest basketball teams which has ever represented Ross Twp. High School recently closed a highly successful season with a record of nineteen victories and only four defeats.

Ross High won the boys' title in the 1930 Greene County Class B tournament but was eliminated by Olive Branch, Clark County champion, 29 to 24 in the first round of the Class B sectional tournament at Springfield last Friday afternoon.

Besides Olive Branch, the only teams able to defeat Ross during the regular season were Centerville, Piquette and Cedarville. The Cedarville defeat was later avenged twice, once in a return game and subsequently in the county tourney.

The Ross quintet piled up 710 points in twenty-three games against 423 for opponents.

The Ross basketball squad is pictured above. Front row, left to right—Jerome Pitstick, forward; William Reid, guard; Paul Jenks, forward and captain; Howard Swain, center; Russell Gordon, forward; Richard Arment, forward. Second row—Charles Hickman, guard; Woodrow Klontz, forward; Ralph Stitsworth, guard; Marvin Agnor, forward, and Supt. A. F. Rouss, coach.

The complete record for the season follows:

Ross 28, Piquette 8.
Ross 50, Selma 24.
Ross 34, Bowersville 26.
Ross 26, Jeffersonville 9.
Ross 21, Centerville 22.
Ross 36, Sedalia 20.
Ross 32, Bellbrook 22.
Ross 21, Martinsville 20.
Ross 26, North Hampton 16.
Ross 39, Enon 20.
Ross 43, Caesar Creek 16.
Ross 38, Jeffersville 8.
Ross 23, Plattsburg 27.
Ross 59, Bowersville 27.
Ross 26, Cedarville 28.
Ross 30, Bellbrook 15.
Ross 33, Cedarville 20.
Ross 44, Selma 21.
Ross 35, Jamestown 20.
Ross 23, Bellbrook 20.
Ross 32, Cedarville 15.
Ross 20, Springfield 17.

PHOTOGRAPHER CATCHES WORLD'S FASTEST WOMAN AT WORK, PLAY

Steadily Stella Walsh, of Cleveland, America's new woman sprint champion, has been winning athletic honors until she now feels her next step should be participation in the 1932 Olympics. Stella, who is going to night school in order to pass citizenship tests so that she will be able to represent the United States, came here from Poland as a baby. Not yet 19 years of age, she has set a new world's record for the 220-yard dash in 26 and four-fifths seconds, at Philadelphia, and, in New York, ran the 50-yard dash in six seconds flat. Above, Stella is shown as she looks on the starting line and at her work as filing clerk in the New York Central railroad offices.

EIGHT TEAMS WILL COMPETE IN REGIONAL FINALS IN DAYTON

Eight teams, including four survivors of the sectional tournament at Dayton and four survivors of the regional meet at Cincinnati, will compete in the Class A division of the Southwestern sectional state tournament at the fairgrounds coliseum in Dayton Friday and Saturday for the right to represent this district in the state finals at Columbus a week later.

The semi-finals this week-end will bring together Dayton Stivers, Dayton Chaminade, Greenville, Bellefontaine, Cincinnati Purcell, Withrow, Norwood and Hamilton.

Although the champion Stivers team, envisioning its third straight title, rules the favorite to represent this district in the state finals, the Orange Crusader will not have an easy road to travel as the surviving teams from the Cincinnati district are expected to furnish plenty of opposition.

Drawings for the opening round will be held at Dayton Monday night.

Stivers barely escaped defeat Saturday night in its second round game with Dayton Roosevelt, defeating the Teddies by one point, 13 to 12, and strategy almost enabled Roosevelt to spring a tremendous surprise.

Carrying the stalling game to a point as near as possible to perfection in the first half, Roosevelt kept possession of the ball under its own basket also all the time and Stivers, led at the half, 4 to 0. In the second half the Teddies did a right-about face and attempted to score points on their own account. Stivers was outscored in the last two periods and nearly lost the game.

Dayton Chaminade defeated Xenia Central, 25 to 23, by virtue of a big lead rolled up in the first half, while Greenville eliminated Dayton Steele, 17 to 16 after an overtime period in a minor upset and Bellefontaine put Sidney out

PLAIN JOHN No Fancy Names For Roxy Tenor

(Editors Note: This is another of a series of sketches of the most prominent radio artists of the day. Others follow.)

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer

CLEVELAND, O., March 10.—John is a tenor. Plain everyday American John Griffin.

He didn't think it necessary to call himself Antonio Billadoolis or with William Shakespeare, voice instructor. Soon after he came back home Roxy gave him a job. He has appeared in several Broadway shows, too, besides being the Gang's leading lyric tenor.

Under an assumed name some time ago John did popular airs over the ether as the Seagrade tenor in a well-known New York hotel.

Mrs. Griffin is almost a widow, she has decided. Last week she visited her sinking mate for the first time since last June. She stood in the wings of a local theater and could not resist turning to say:

"He looks handsome, doesn't he?"

And a little later—proudly: "I don't care what anybody else thinks. I think our daddy has a wonderful voice. The boys love to hear him sing. They miss him. It is some consolation to hear him over the air. The kiddies get so excited."

Her Favorite Number

His little niece, four, could hardly be kept off the stage. He sang her favorite number and they pulled her back just in time. She rushed out yelling delightedly: "Oh, Uncle John, you singing it for me."

Radio daddies are even wiser than golf daddies, sometimes. Soon, however, John will be back in New York and the little family will have an apartment where they can all be together. And he says:

"I'll have some good chills for a change. My wife makes chill what is chill. Drop in sometime."

JOHN GRIFFIN
JOHN HASN'T SEEN OUR NEWEST BABY!

MRS. GRIFFIN IS A REAL RADIO WIDOW

Herr Augustus Hosenfeffer, to get by in his own country, he informs you with spirit.

He is one of fifteen children and has worked his way in the world since he was big enough to help out with the family budget. He is twenty-seven now, and the father of three boys of his own—Buddy, 6; Billy, 3, and Bobby, born last Thanksgiving day. John hasn't even seen his newest son, for he has been touring the country in a personal appearance act and the baby is in Chicago with his mamma.

Entered Newspaper Business

He was born in Wheaton, Ill. While in grammar school he went to work on the Chicago Post. During his high school days he newspapered, too. All of his fourteen brothers and sisters are either in the show business or the newspaper game.

It was in 1921 that John Griffin went to New York. His brother, Gerald, was all set to sail for London to sing at Covent Garden. John wanted to go, too. So—he got a job washing dishes on an ocean liner and worked his way over. In London he worked and studied

Capt. Harold L. Hays, superintendent of the O. S. and S. O. Home will give an address on "Hicks and Their Uses" at the regular meeting of Greene County Boy Scout Leaders in the assembly room of the Court House at 7:15 o'clock, Monday evening.

District Commissioner S. N. McClellan will lead in a discussion on "The Duties of the Troop Committeeman."

The committee making arrangements for the meeting is composed of H. E. Eichman, chairman, S. N. McClellan, Ernest Blackburn and Robert H. Kingsbury.

A boy scout radio program in the form of a surprise will be announced at this meeting.

WOOL EXPERT WILL ADDRESS GROWERS

J. F. Walker, secretary of the Ohio Wool Growers' Association, will speak to farmers of Greene County in the assembly room of the Court House, Tuesday evening, March 11 at 8 o'clock on problems confronting the sheep industry.

Mr. Walker was selected and sent by the federal government to study sheep and wool conditions in Australia, New Zealand and other foreign countries and many of his writings have appeared in the farm papers.

Mr. Walker will explain the National Wool Marketing Corporation which has been organized under the guidance of the Federal Farm Board and how it can help the producer in his marketing problems.

This corporation, with a capital stock of $1,000,000, expects to handle 25 to 30 per cent of the 1930 wool clip, and arrangements are being made for the immediate financing of growers through existing co-operative associations.

FOR THE LOVE OF PATI BY C.L. WEBB © 1929

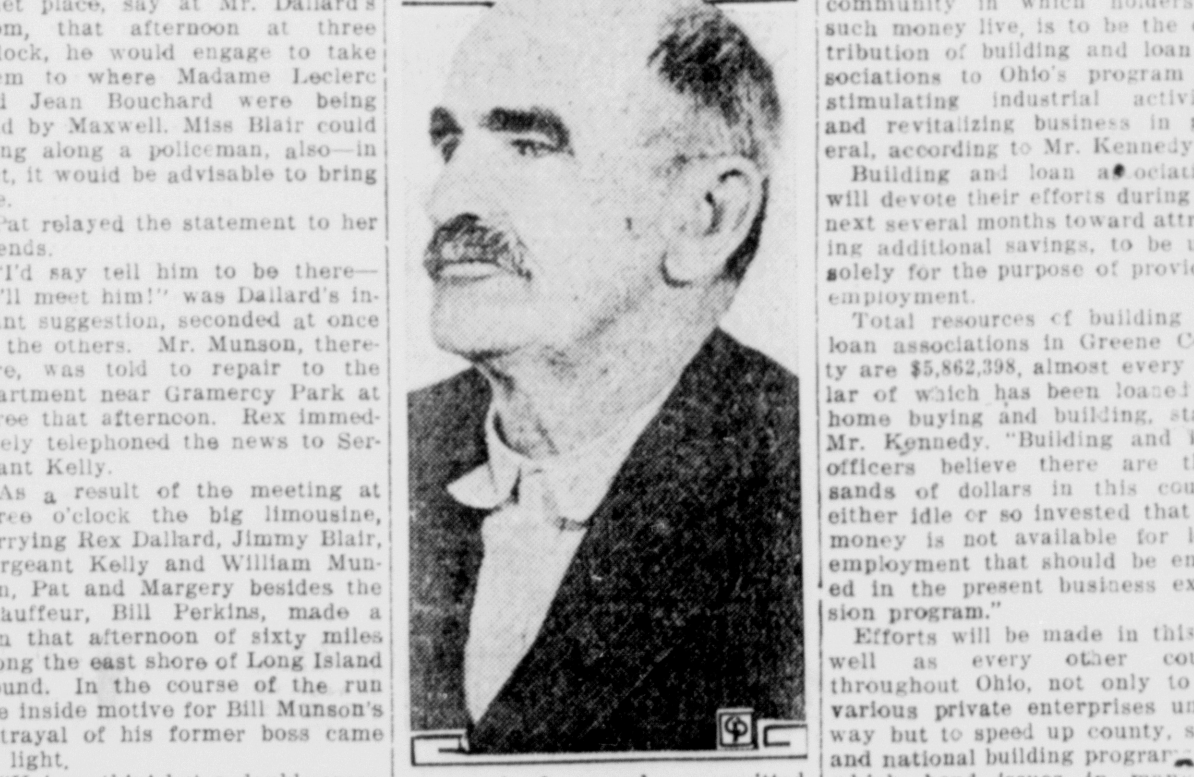

CHAPTER 55 It was just talk as this, Pat, musedly confided to Rex very close together in a secluded place on the top deck while the steamer ploughed through the waters adjacent to Bermuda—such talk as this that frequently leads young and romantic souls to their air. "Ah-h, the altar!" repeated Rex softly, the sentimental heart of him leaping at the connecting thought, "That word has a lit and a rhythm that fairly sings of romance. I've always had a sort of vague hope that I'd some day meet you and 'twould be the altar for us! How about it?" "I wonder," echoed Pat from a spot close to the place where he wore his fountain pen, when he wore a vest. Back in New York, at police headquarters, it was learned that the wireless report sent out by Banks, of the yacht's sinking, had been published by the newspapers, with the added "news" that the Bluebird's new owner and her guests, with the captain and first mate, had gone down with the yacht. The two prisoners, now under government jurisdiction, had been taken from the fruit steamer straight to jail. Pat and her friends also learned from Sergeant Kelly that Madame Leclerc and Jean Bouchard were still among the missing. No clue of any description had the police obtained, either of them or of Herbert Maxwell. It was just as if, to use the well-worn simile, "the car had opened up and swallowed them." But when the returned voyagers reached the Lynne home in Brooklyn to which Rex, being now, as Jimmy expressed it, "one of the family—almost," accompanied them, they were furnished with some information by the chauffeur, Bill Perkins, that stirred them into quick action. A man had come to him, Bill said, three days before at the garage over which Bill had his living apartment, and inquired if Miss Blair had returned home as yet. He had, apparently, not seen the newspaper report. Upon being told that she had not yet returned, the man, who gave his name as William Munson and said he had worked as chauffeur for Herbert Maxwell, told Perkins he had some important information for Miss Blair regarding Madame Leclerc. He had given Bill his telephone number and had asked that Miss Blair call him up as soon as possible. Bill fished a slip of paper out of a pocket and handed it to Pat. "A chauffeur of Maxwell's," commented Rex, glancing at the phone number over Pat's shoulder. "And he has important information regarding Madame Leclerc! You'd better call him up, Pat," he advised. "Probably he has had a rumup with Old Maxy and wants to get square!" If Miss Blair and her friends, so stated the voice over the wire in response to Pat's call, would meet him, William Munson, at some quiet place, say at Mr. Dallard's room, that afternoon at three o'clock, he would engage to take them to where Madame Leclerc and Jean Bouchard were being held by Maxwell. Miss Blair could bring along a policeman, also—in fact, it would be advisable to bring one. Pat relayed the statement to her friends. "I'll say tell him to be there—we'll meet him!" was Dallard's instant suggestion, seconded at once by the others. Mr. Munson, therefore, was told to repair to the apartment near Gramercy Park at three that afternoon. Rex immediately telephoned the news to Sergeant Kelly. As a result of the meeting at three o'clock the big limousine, carrying Rex Dallard, Jimmy Blair, Sergeant Kelly and William Munson, Pat and Margery besides the chauffeur, Bill Perkins, made a run that afternoon of sixty miles along the east shore of Long Island Sound. In the course of the run the inside motive for Bill Munson's betrayal of his former boss came to light. "He's nothin' but a double-crossing murdering old hog!" asserted the ex-chauffeur, of Maxwell, in his final summing-up of that individual. "He double-crossed Miss Blair, and he double-crossed Jean Bouchard and half a dozen times in different ways. He double-crossed the Madame and he's double-crossed me! Why, he even owes me my last month's wages! He hates to give up a nickel, he's that mean. But he can't give away all the time with Bill Munson! I got it on him now every way from the jack, with all his smartness! He hasn't the slightest notion that I know where he put Madame and the kid. But I followed him one night two weeks back. And I know, too, where he put the securities he got from—" "You know that?" cut in Rex swiftly. "You sure?" "Sure I'm sure!" boasted Munson, whose ego had become greatly inflated by the manner in which his information had been received. But the first time in his life Bill Munson had something to tell that was really important to important people. "I can take you right to the bank where he's got them planted—in a safe-deposit box!" "That's fine, Munson!" said Jimmy Blair, his brown eyes gleaming. "And now, listen: You play square with us—do exactly as my sister and Mr. Dallard tell you—and I, myself, will make you a little present. And I've no doubt but what my sister'll do the same. But mind—you must play the game square—do just as they say!" "Thank you, Mr. Blair, thank you, sir!" returned the happily surprised chauffeur.

THREE ARRESTED IN SERIES OF LIQUOR RAIDS ON SATURDAY

Armed with search warrants, Sheriff Ohmer Tate and his deputies accompanied by state prohibition inspectors conducted a series of raids in search of liquor which netted three arrests Saturday afternoon. Those under arrest, charged with possessing liquor, are Noble A. Pace, Jasper Pike, Grover Middleton, filling station proprietor, Dayton and Xenia Pike, and William Lewis, Zimmerman and Fairfield Road. Lewis will probably be charged with only second offense for violating the liquor laws as his recent conviction for second offense is being appealed to a higher court. Several pints and a five-gallon jug partly filled with liquor were reported to have been confiscated at his residence. Authorities announced that a raid on Middleton's filling station resulted in the confiscation of a pint of liquor and a small quantity in a jug while three points and a half were said to have been found when the officers visited the home of Pace. Middleton was released on bond. The three men are expected to be arraigned on the liquor charges Monday. The raiding officers also visited several other places where it was suspected liquor would be discovered but no more arrests were made.

Old Murder Revived The mobilization of dormant and idle money, to the end that funds not now employed or put to use as employed as not to benefit the community in which holders of such money live, is to be the contribution of building and loan associations to Ohio's program for stimulating industrial activities and revitalizing business in general, according to Mr. Kennedy. Building and loan associations will devote their efforts during the next several months toward attracting additional savings, to be used solely for the purpose of providing employment. Total resources of building and loan associations in Greene County are $5,862,398, almost every dollar of which has been loaned for home buying and building, stated Mr. Kennedy. "Building and loan officers believe there are thousands of dollars in this county either idle or so invested that money is not available for employment that should be enlisted in the present business extension program." Efforts will be made in this, as well as every other county throughout Ohio, not only to get various private enterprises under way but to speed up county, state and national building programs for which bond issues in many instances already have been approved. Building and loan leaders will urge home-owners who content plate home modernization, or the building of new homes, to get started somewhat earlier than usual. In this connection, according to Mr. Kennedy, building and loan associations will be able to use additional thousands of dollars, as the building program of the past several years has kept money already in these institutions well employed.

Old Murder Revived

Accused of a murder committed 28 years ago, James Brown, 65, will face trial in Little Rock, Ark., in May. Five men were indicted in 1902 for the murder of Sheriff John Powers, two were hanged, one escaped after being sentenced, one was dismissed. John Dunn, the fifth man, never was caught and police believe Brown is Dunn, although he denies any knowledge of the crime or name.

The Theater

The deaf and the hard-of-hearing may enjoy talking pictures soon if it is learned, through the announcement that the Warner Bros. Theater on Broadway will be the first in the United States to be equipped with devices to enable hearing. This is the theater where Vitaphone was introduced to the public. The deaf were deprived of one means of entertainment when silent motion pictures passed, because the written titles in silent pictures permitted them to follow the story without the aid of their hearing.

The installation of the Theater-phone system in the Warner Theater may be followed by similar installations in other cities. The apparatus has been designed by Charles H. Lehman, widely known for his work among the hard-of-hearing and will be installed by the Hearing Devices Corporation of New York.

In various sections of the theater and in the lobbies, the arms of certain designated seats will carry a small box less than two inches square. An especially designed earpiece mounted on a convenient handle will be plugged into each box with the result that perfect clarity of tone will be achieved. The Warners plan to use the equipment in all their theaters after the New York installation.

Bob Ripley, whose syndicated drawing "Believe It Or Not" is published widely in newspapers, has been signed by Warners to make sketches for Vitaphone Varieties. The series will be produced under the title of "Believe It Or Not". It will not be Ripley's first acting role. He has appeared frequently as a vaudeville headliner on the major circuits with a crayon drawing act and has been heard of the radio frequently.

Nancy Carroll, Lillian Roth, "Skeets" Gallagher and Little Mitzi are the "talkie" talent to be heard from Hollywood during the broadcast of the Paramount-Public Hour over the Columbia chain next Saturday at 10 p. m. E. S. T. Musical numbers and dialogue from the picture "Home" will be presented by the players, who are all featured in that production. Little Mitzi is only eight years old but has proven ability as a comic. The rest of the program will come from the New York studios and will include:

John H. Perkins, who recently resigned his position with the Smokehouse, has started what will be known as the Big-O cigar factory.

A mounted moose head, the largest and best specimen ever seen in this city, arrived here and will be placed in the Commercial Bank.

On account of Easter coming so early this year, the millinery season has opened with a rush.

Mr. Leonard Jones recently purchased a fine, full blooded Pecheron horse, which has attracted considerable attention when paraded on the streets. The animal is a dapple gray and will weigh almost 1,900 pounds.

EASTERN STAR BODY TO HOLD DISTRICT MEET WEDNESDAY

The seventh annual session of the Eighteenth Ohio District, Order of Eastern Star, will be held at the Masonic Temple on High St. in Springfield Wednesday, March 12.

The meeting will convene at 10 o'clock and the two Springfield chapters, Home City Chapter No. 255 and Norris Chapter, No. 426, will be the hostess chapters.

Officers of the district are: president, Mrs. Mildred Junk, of Sterling Chapter, No. 74, Mt. Sterling; vice-president, Miss Florence Swan, of Aldora Chapter, No. 262, Xenia; secretary, Mrs. Lucy Baldwin, of Diamond Chapter, No. 34, St. Paris; treasurer, Mrs. Edith Adams, of Caroline Chapter No. 39, Mechanicsburg.

The morning session will be called to order by Mrs. Ethel Webster, of Norris Chapter, No. 426, Springfield, junior past president and the meeting will be opened by Mrs. Junk, the president.

The invocation will be delivered by Mrs. Hazel Beach, of London Chapter No. 386, past grand matron. The program opens with presentation of grand officers and presentation of guests and past presidents with the 1930 matrons as honorary escorts. The official welcome will be given by the hostess chapters and Miss Florence Swan, Xenia, as vice-president, will give the response.

A business meeting and election of officers will follow. Luncheon will be served at 11:45 a. m. The afternoon session, beginning at 1 o'clock, will be called to order by Mrs. Bessie Boice, Mt. Sterling, grand secretary and the program will open with a presentation of district officers-elect. This will be followed by a memorial by James-town Chapter, No. 141 and presentation of the deputy grand matron, Miss Hesperia Moore, Mechanicsburg.

Next on the program is a school of instruction with exemplification of the new ritual, the officers being taken from the various chapters of the district. One of the high spots of the afternoon session will be an address by Mrs. Elma Hullinger, of Home City Chapter, No. 258, Springfield, worthy grand matron. All members of the Eastern Star are invited to attend the district meeting.

PROFESSOR SPEAKS BEFORE STUDENTS

Professor George F. David, head of the department of sociology, Wilberforce University, lectured before the students and faculty of Bluffton College, Bluffton, O., March 7 and 9.

Friday afternoon was devoted to group discussion with student groups in sociology, especially the phase devoted to a discussion of racial traits and differences. Sunday evening, at the vespers hour, Professor David addressed the entire student body and faculty on "Inter-racial Relations."

Professor David's lecture was arranged by the Inter-Collegiate Lecture Committee and is in the nature of an exchange for a Bluffton speaker appearing at Wilberforce at an early date.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. CATHERINE M'GRATH

Funeral services for Mrs. Catherine E. McGrath, 89, who died at her home on Jackson Road, near Yellow Springs, Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence. Burial will be made in Yellow Springs Cemetery. The Rev. F. R. Leamer, pastor of Bethel Chapel, will officiate.

Mrs. McGrath was born in Greene County near Yellow Springs, August 19, 1840, but had spent most of her life in Clark County. She was a member of the Wones Chapel.

She is survived by two sons, Riley P. and Warren A. McGrath at home and a brother, H. T. Wike of Springfield.

National Farm Outlook

Just as electricity has not as yet been able to contribute anything to the actual operations of farming, so the airplane is still looking vainly for a place in the agricultural picture.

This modern marvel has its uses, of course. It flies from one place to another with swiftness and reasonable certainty, skimming high over fields, forests and rivers.

But it is precisely those fields and woods which contain and confine the labor and skill of the farmer. The airplane has found no way as yet to bring its wings down, usefully, to the furrow and windrow.

That is not to say, however, that airplanes have not been tried, and sometimes with promising results, in farm activities.

In the southwest and northwest, for example, the last outposts of the big ranch, a few owners of large or widely scattered properties use the air to get from one to another.

In the south airplanes are occasionally used for dusting poison over the cotton fields to combat the boll weevil. Orchards and cranberry bogs are similarly dusted, fields have been sown with seed, hillside with seeds of forest trees.

An occasional prize hog or cow has been conveyed to a show and

ITCHING ENDS WHEN ZEMO TOUCHES SKIN

—thousands say. It's wonderful the way soothing, cooling Zemo brings relief to skin which itches and burns. Even in most severe cases, itching disappears almost as soon as Zemo touches the tender and inflamed surface. To draw out local infection and help to clear away unsightly blemishes, we know of nothing better than invisible Zemo. Always keep this family antiseptic on hand. Use it freely. upper air, or the precision of the air mail or passenger lines.

The technical agricultural airplane pilot is still to be developed. There is certainly no prospect of his early advent, for there is no need for him apparent, as yet on the nation's farms.

DEBATERS ARRANGE SERIES OF MATCHES

The girls' debating team of Wilberforce University will meet the girls' team from Wiley University April 4, at St. Louis, Mo., in a joint debate, resolved: "That the Jury System in Criminal Trials Should be Abolished."

An at home open forum discussion with Northwestern University by the Men's team is scheduled for April 7, on the question of "Complete Disarmament." On April 16, the Wilberforce Men's team will meet Howard University at Washington in a no decision debate on "The Limitation of Students for Admission to College."

Starting April 22, the men's team will make a four engagement invasion of the East in open forum discussions on the subject of "Complete Disarmament." Howard University will be met April 22, Virginia Union April 24, Virginia State College April 25, and Lincoln University April 30.

The entire debating schedule has been arranged under the auspices of the Committee on Inter-Collegiate Debate, of which Professor George F. David of Wilberforce University is chairman.

"Two Years Since I Had a Headache"

Says Florence Sherman of Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Calif. — "For years I suffered with splitting headaches," says Miss Florence Sherman of this city. "I tried everything for relief, but nothing did more than temporary good. Finally I went to my doctor. He attributed the cause to constipation, and prescribed Pluto Water—a safe dose each morning, diluted in hot water. That was two years ago. Since the thanks to Pluto, I have never had headache from this cause."

Pluto Water is more than a relief for constipation—although it is in connection that it is best known. Pluto Water will relieve the most stubborn case in from thirty minutes to two hours; but, taken regularly each morning (a small quantity in hot or cold water) it will keep the system regular, ward off the serious complaint. Try it today. Pluto Water is bottled at French Springs, Ind., and sold at drug stores and fountains everywhere.

UNIT CONTROL

UNIT CONTROL—Here is a new system in furniture merchandising that has been inaugurated to save money for you and us. It is just one of the many unseen services that the Brown organization gives to you.

A constant flow of merchandise from a carefully selected group of fine manufacturers is offered to you in Xenia by means of "UNIT CONTROL."

Here you will find not only products of one man's shop but a diversified line—everything you can want in furniture in a constant moving picture.

We have a set policy to never offer "dead" items. These are closed out three times a year at bonafide reductions. These reductions are made because items are floor samples and have suffered a depreciation in value.

We know of no other organization in Ohio with so perfect a stock control. This system alone enables us to offer YOU good furniture fully 10 per cent cheaper than any other company.

Florence Oil Ranges

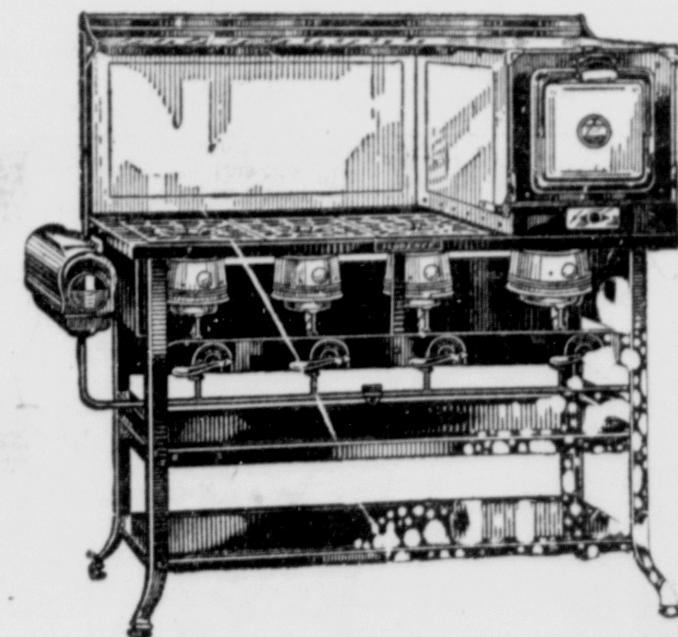

Wouldn't you rather own a fine Nationally Advertised Oil Range that has been tested by millions of people all over the United States than one you know nothing about?

Models for every kitchen need. The Florence Burner is easily operated—positively regulated, wickless, valveless—absolutely dependable. Finished in black and gray enamel.
